

Name Dr Joellen Riley

Current Function Professor of Labour Law, Sydney Law School, University of Sydney

Professional Career Joellen Riley joined the University of Sydney in 1998 after several years as a finance journalist, and some time in legal practice. She teaches undergraduate law students in a range of private and commercial law subjects, as well as a number of specialist post-graduate units in the Master of Labour Law and Relations program. Her academic career includes a period of time on the Faculty of the University of New South Wales. She has also undertaken consultancy work for law firms, and for the New South Wales government, and is presently a part-time consultant with People+Culture Strategies in Sydney . She has been a co-editor of the Australian Journal of Labour Law since 2007.

Main Research The law relating to work, including employment and labour law, and the regulation of small business service providers.

Memberships Australian Labour Law Association; International Labour and Employment Relations Association; Commercial Law Association; Australian Institute of Employment Rights; Australian Law Teachers Association; Corporate Law Teachers Association.

Main Publications

Books

1. (with Rosemary Owens and Jill Murray) The Law of Work, OUP, Melbourne (1st edition, 2007; 2nd edition 2011)
2. Employment Protection at Common Law, Federation Press,

Sydney, 2005.

3. (with C Sappideen, P O'Grady and G Warburton) Macken's Law of Employment, 7th ed Thomson Reuters, Sydney 2011.
4. (with Peter Sheldon) Remaking Australian Industrial Relations, CCH, Sydney, 2008.
5. Independent Work Contracts, Thomson, Sydney, 2007.

Contact

Email: joellen.riley@sydney.edu.au

Work phone: 61 2 9351 0476.

Address: New Law Building F10, Eastern Avenue, University of Sydney, NSW 2006, AUSTRALIA.